I am writing you in an attempt to get you to drop the idea of more regulation in IRA accounts that trade options.

I have spend a great deal of time in learning to use options in my IRA account. Properly used, options reduce risk rather than increase risk.

Options traders do not need to be protected from themselves any more than we are already protected.

Options trading has significantly improved my quality of life. Please do not take this trading away from me. More regulation will add costs that brokers will have to pass on to clients, effectively ending our ability to support ourselves.

Your immediate attention to this matter is appreciated.
